

Kulkarni Foundation Endowed PhD Fellowship (AY 26-27)

Dr. Ashok Kulkarni, a distinguished alumnus of the India Institute of Technology and the University of Maryland Graduate School, generously endowed the Kulkarni Foundation Endowed PhD Fellowship. The Award provides support to doctoral students who are in the latter stages of their UMD doctoral program. Nominees must be first-generation and demonstrate financial need. Preference will be given to students working to complete dissertations with a community improvement focus.

The Tuition Assistance Award offers up to $3,500 to offset the cost of candidacy tuition (e.g., 899 credits), mandatory fees, and other educational costs.

Eligibility Information

Eligible students must:

- Be a first-generation PhD student enrolled in a UMD program
- Demonstrate financial need
- Be in the latter stages of their program (preferably their final year)
- Preferably, be engaged in dissertation research that benefits disadvantaged communities

Please note, students with graduate assistantship support during the award year are not eligible for this award.

Students may receive the Kulkarni PhD Fellowship only once.

Fellowships are awarded to specific students and are not transferable to other students. Fellowships may not be deferred.

Application requirements and instructions are found on page 2

Application Requirements
