ArtLab at Harvard University - Call for Project Proposals

The ArtLab at Harvard University (<https://artlab.harvard.edu/>) is soliciting applications from Harvard affiliates for course-related special projects and artist research and development. Applications are reviewed on an ongoing basis.

About the ArtLab

Similar to scientific laboratories, the ArtLab supports creative research and experimentation, prioritizing Harvard University-affiliated projects. Annually, the ArtLab supports several projects from this open call. Examples of past projects and course-related support can be found here: <https://artlab.harvard.edu/projects/>

Working at the ArtLab and Project Support Information

The ArtLab is a place for experimentation featuring collaborative workspaces and private studios. It is equipped with various built-in technologies available for researchers, including a fabrication workshop, recording studio, projectors, speakers, and a dance floor. More information about ArtLab's tech specs can be seen here. Applicants may schedule a site via email request.

Successful projects typically possess at least 3-4 of the following characteristics:

- Arts research and process-focused
- Part of a course in the arts
- Support for a specific phase of an ongoing project
- Short-term
- Appropriate for the resources offered by the ArtLab
- Connected to and supported by a department within Harvard University

Faculty members, teaching staff, and graduate students with departmental support may submit applications.

Questions and requests for more information can be directed to artlab@harvard.edu.
