

Curricular Programs

Collaborative Research and Scholarly Experiences

Collaborative Research and Scholarly Experiences (COEX) engage groups of students in addressing a research question or knowledge gap of interest to scholarly communities. Typically, a COEX course would engage students in:

1. Research practices authentic to the discipline (e.g., by asking questions, using the tools of the discipline for gathering and analyzing data, developing and critiquing interpretations and arguments).
2. Discovery, or exploration of ill-structured questions where the outcome is not known to the students nor the instructor, and there is the potential for generating new knowledge or insights.
3. Creating work that has potential impact beyond the classroom (e.g., through reports for an outside organization, authorship or acknowledgement in a potential publication, blogs or podcasts distributed beyond the classroom).
4. Collaboration, such as group work, giving and receiving peer feedback, pooling data, and sharing interpretations.
5. Iteration, or processes of revision, learning from failure, and acknowledging and building on other students' work.

A complete list of each semester's COEX courses may be viewed in Courses@Brown by choosing "Collaborative Research and Scholarly Experiences" in the Curricular Programs field.

Community-Based Learning and Research

Community-Based Learning and Research (CBLR) courses connect academic inquiry with real-world learning experiences, enabling students to integrate and transfer their learning to contexts beyond the classroom.

CBLR-designated courses: (i) Involve collaboration with one or more community partners to investigate an important social challenge or problem; (ii) Incorporate in-depth community-based experiences (typically undertaken outside of the classroom) into the learning and/or research objectives of the course; (iii) Provide structured opportunities for reflecting on the relationship between classroom learning and real-world experience, with the goals of deepening the understanding of course content and exploring questions of identity, agency, and social responsibility; and (iv) Create products or outcomes that are shared with the community partner and/or broader public.

A complete list of each semester's CBLR courses may be viewed in Courses@Brown by choosing "Community-Based Learning and Research" in the Curricular Programs field.

First Year Seminars

First-year seminars ensure close contact between first-year students and faculty members while simultaneously offering a rigorous introduction to the concepts and methods of a particular subject area or department. Seminars have few if any prerequisites and are offered in all areas of the curriculum, from anthropology to physics to literary arts. Students receive regular feedback on the work they produce for the seminars, and seminar faculty often serve as informal mentors for their students long after the class has ended. A complete list of each semester's seminars may be viewed in Courses@Brown by choosing "First-Year Seminar" in the Curricular Programs field.

Race, Power, and Privilege Courses

Race, Power and Privilege (RPP) courses center issues of race and examine issues of structural inequality, racial formations and/or disparities and systems of power within a complex, pluralistic world. Course syllabi clearly outline these goals to students via learning objectives, assessment, and readings. All are welcome to explore this curriculum.

RPP courses investigate:

- the ways different forms of power and privilege construct racial and identity formations in the U.S. and/or globally; the cultural, political and intellectual responses to this racialization;
- how categories of race and ethnicity are produced intersectionally in relation to other hierarchical structures of difference including gender, sexual orientation, class, religion, ability, citizenship status and geography;
- the structures, institutions, practices and attitudes that enable, maintain or mitigate domestic and/or global racial disparities in health, income, education outcomes, media representations, etc.; and/or
- the ways in which disciplinary structures of knowledge have been embedded in such historical formations as racism and colonialism.

Sophomore Seminars

Sophomore seminars bring together ideas, perspectives, and approaches that are not normally seen side by side in a given course or program. Embracing a range of intellectual perspectives, many of the seminars focus specifically on issues of social justice, identity, and difference. Limited to twenty students each, the seminars help students develop the skills, knowledge, and values they need to progress toward more advanced learning in a discipline or field.

A complete list of each semester's SOPH seminars may be viewed in Courses@Brown by choosing "Sophomore Seminar" in the Curricular Programs field.

Writing-Designated Courses

Brown students are expected to work on writing in their general studies and in the concentration. Students may begin to fulfill this expectation by taking at least one course that carries the WRIT designation. WRIT courses are offered across the curriculum and help students develop the ability to write well in styles appropriate to different academic disciplines.

A complete list of each semester's WRIT courses may be viewed in Courses@Brown by choosing "Writing-Designated Courses" in the Curricular Programs field.
