

DANCE MINOR

for the Undergraduate Minor in Dance

The undergraduate minor in Dance offers students an in-depth experience in the study and practice of dance. Dance is studied through a variety of perspectives and activities, including: dance technique classes, in a global variety of forms, and courses in making dances, dance history and context, and dance production. The minor is comprised of 18 hours of dance-related coursework. In addition to the life-long benefits of artistic fulfillment, health, and discipline that come from dance study, a minor in dance will benefit students who intend to pursue careers in any creative field, including related arts disciplines, the health and well-being industry, education, and body-based humanities research. Study in dance also significantly contributes to the creative economy by building audiences for all arts endeavors and broader public engagement efforts.

BA Dance and BFA Dance majors are not eligible for the undergraduate minor in Dance.
