

STUDIO ART: INTERDISCIPLINARY PRACTICE, BFASA

for the degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts in Studio Art in Studio Art, Interdisciplinary Practice Concentration

The BFA in Studio Art with a concentration in Interdisciplinary Practice offers a student-initiated path through a variety of studio art course offerings. This concentration is meant for those students who want to develop multiple approaches to making art, rather than focusing on a singular discipline or medium. The contemporary art world is inherently interdisciplinary, flexible, and responsive to new technologies and methods of expression. The Interdisciplinary Studio concentration recognizes this and offers students the opportunity to approach, hone and develop skills across the wide range of related fine arts practices offered in the School of Art and Design. Students who choose the Interdisciplinary Practice concentration develop an array of practical approaches, weaving together experience and skills from courses across our studio areas and faculty expertise. Interdisciplinary courses at the sophomore, junior, and senior level focus on developing practical skills in a variety of material applications. Advanced courses center on building critical, theoretical, and professional competencies and expertise in unique studio practices.

Students in the School of Art and Design must complete the Campus General Education requirements (<https://courses.illinois.edu/gened/DEFAULT/DEFAULT/>). Some Art and Design courses will also apply toward the General Education requirements (<https://courses.illinois.edu/gened/DEFAULT/DEFAULT/>).

Students majoring in this degree program must complete the First Year Curriculum requirements before beginning other major requirements.

Students in the BFA Studio Art degree, major in Studio Art, must declare one concentration and students may not declare more than one concentration.

A portfolio review is required for admission to the School of Art and Design.
